FULL PRESS RELEASE

CRANSTON, RI (January, 6th 2020) – John Antonacci has been passionate about marketing since the beginning of his professional career. Over time he has had the opportunity to develop these skills with companies like AJM magazine (now the MJSA journal), Advanced Chemical Company, and Animus Studios, a video marketing company. John was fortunate to acquire additional knowledge by hosting authors, CMO's and other talented marketers as the co-host of the Podcast "The Video Jungle."

"In this new position at Gannon & Scott, John's sales and marketing background coupled with his extensive experience in precious metals makes him the perfect fit. With his expertise, we are looking forward to creating an even stronger presence in the precious metal markets." George Lucas, VP of Sales and Business Development, Gannon & Scott.

John has served on the Board of Directors for MJSA (Manufacturers Jewelers Suppliers Association) and the Providence Jewelers Club. He has also given marketing seminars at several industry events discussing topics such as "Telling your Brand's Story" and "Video Marketing Strategies."

Gannon & Scott serves customers across North America, processing, assaying and recovering precious metals from a range of spent materials at its facilities in Phoenix, Arizona, and Cranston, Rhode Island.
